Ti Training Donates $42,000 Simulator to Jeffco Public Schools

GOLDEN, Colo. (April 20, 2016) – Ti Training, based in Golden, has donated a $42,000 simulator to Jeffco Public Schools for security training. The simulator allows school security staff and local law enforcement to interactively train for different school threat scenarios. The simulator will be housed at a former Jeffco Public Schools elementary school that is now used for school security training.

“This week marks 17 years since our community was stricken by the Columbine tragedy,” said Jeffco Public Schools Executive Director of Security & Emergency Management John McDonald. “That this generous donation, which will greatly enhance our security training, happened this week reminds us just how important it is to continue working on school safety and security.”

Ti Training produces industry leading hardware and software solutions for law enforcement and public safety professionals. Their award winning systems are used in departments around the world for instruction and skills application in classroom and training room situations. Access to this type of training simulator for a school district is a huge benefit to school safety.
